Go green or face fine

From April 6, property owners will be required by law to provide Energy Performance Certificates (EPC) for their commercial property - without one a property owner will be unable to construct, lease or sell a building and could even face a fine.

The new rules will apply to buildings over 10,000m² and from July 1 this will extend to buildings over 2,500m² and from October 1 buildings over 50m².
