

DEMAND FOR WEALTH MANAGEMENT CONTINUES TO GROW FOR TAYLOR PATTERSON

DESPITE the credit crunch, wealthy individuals are still in need of advice on securing a good investment.

As a result, Preston and Sheffield based financial advisers Taylor Patterson has appointed Paul Lawrence to its growing wealth management division.

Paul, of Horwich, near Bolton, joins as a wealth management administrator from his previous post with the Co-Op Bank where he worked as a mortgage consultant.

He holds a BA (Hons) in Business and Marketing from the University of Central Lancashire, and is studying towards a Certificate in Financial Planning.

Glynn Bartley, director of Taylor Paterson Wealth Management, said: “There are many wealthy investors who, particularly in the current financial markets, still need good advice from financial advisers.

“Taylor Patterson’s wealth management division is reacting to this need. We have a great team of expert advisers, and Paul will undoubtedly become a key member of the team, and increase the level of service we can offer clients.”
